An Important Decision for Our Future

This coming November the voters of Michigan's 7th Congressional District will choose a new representative. Tomorrow and in the coming years, this new congressman is going to need the knowledge, skills, energy, and practical experience to work for the people of Michigan in local, national, and international arenas. The people of this part of Michigan are going to need a representative and leader who is able to listen, weigh difficult alternatives, and act to make things happen in the Michigan of today.

The Right Kind of Leader

Dr. Drew Alan Walker is just such a leader. He is a self-made individual, an honored scientist and educator with over twenty years of hard-earned experience in small business, international business, scientific research, and non-profit work. He is the candidate with the experience to get things done, bring people back together, and run this congressional office as it should be run.

Experienced

Whether concerning jobs, investment, federal funding for local initiatives, or homeland and international security, the people of this district need a moderate representative who will be able to help win and secure a better future for working families. They need a strong and experienced advocate who will be able to succeed not only at home, but who is also able to win in the nationally competitive environment on Capitol Hill.

Resourceful

Regardless of from whatever community, background or political party this new representative may come, he must be a resourceful, future-oriented, and tested individual who has what it takes to seek out, win, and bring home the resources Michigan needs to grow. Business as usual is no longer working for Michigan families, or for business. To stay in the game and win the people of Michigan's 7th Congressional District need a hitter.

Along with deep roots and investment in Michigan, Drew Walker has the knowledge, abilities and skills to face the tough issues and complex legislative maneuvers that spell success in Congress. This success will, in turn, lead to influence and bargaining power on behalf of the people of Michigan. Inside the beltway of Washington, as well as at home in every community of the district, Drew Walker will be a distinguished leader for Michigan of whom we can all be proud.

Moderate

Above all else, the everyday, good, and hard-working people of Michigan do not need partisan politicians from any party who continue to rely on preaching to distract from more serious issues, or who bank on their own social status and local reputation to make up for a lifetime of relevant experience in doing what needs to be done. While we must all forever fight to preserve and respect our times for preaching and our times for giving thanks, we must also admit that the time has come for getting down to business and getting our lives and communities back on track. The time has come to get our house in order, and we must start now, before opportunity passes us by and our hard won American prosperity withers away.

As voters and citizens, the people of Michigan are open to good individuals and ideas, and the majority have a tradition of being moderate and fair. This is the reason Drew Walker has decided to make his case, to listen, and to ask for the support of all voters in helping to make the US Congress work for Michigan.

Responsible

After the rollercoaster of events over the past three years, the people of Michigan's 7th District deserve an advocate who will work for the security of their families, businesses and communities in a sensible and decisive way, while preserving the freedom from fear and the liberty so many brave generations have fought to create and preserve. They need a representative who can distinguish fads from enduring trends, good plans from schemes, and who understands how the complexities of technology, investment, national security, and the changing markets can be made to benefit the people of Michigan in the long term.

Understanding

More than this, however, they need a representative who understands that in the end economic success is really measured in terms of more good jobs and less debt for Michigan families. When families are more stable and secure, all sectors of our communities will benefit, we will all be safer, and America will remain strong.

This is the bottom line.

This is one thing we all know and believe in.

This is the business at hand, and Walker is getting down to it.
